chief. The military barrack is within the walls of the ancient castle, built in 1213 by King John, and it is an important station, as the intersection of several great roads occur at this point. The town, which is seated on a stream tributary to the river Brosna, consists of several streets irregularly laid out, and many of the houses are but indifferently built. From the remains of its castles, ecclesiastical edifices, and round tower, the town presents an interesting object as seen from the hills in the surrounding neighbourhood. The manufacture of woollens, which once flourished here, is become almost extinct; but the retail trade is conducted upon an extensive scale, and a large factory for coarse cloths, a distillery, and several flour mills, contribute to the prosperity of the town. There are branches of the National Bank of Ireland and of the Tipperary Joint-Stock Bank, and one for savings. Two good inns—the Victoria Hotel and the White Hart, afford excellent accommodations. Petty sessions are held every Monday in the court-house, and a manorial court is entitled to be held monthly, before the seneschal, in which debts to the amount of £10. Irish are recoverable.
 The parish church is a large commodious edifice, in the Gothic style, erected in 1812: the Roman Catholic chapel stands near the ruins of a Franciscan friary, founded by Mulroony na-Pesouge,—this is about to be replaced by a new and sumptuous structure adjoining the nunnery of Mount St. Joseph. The Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists, and the Society of Friends, have each places of worship. In the great room of the market-house the business of a loan fund is transacted; this was founded, in 1835, by the London Charitable Association, and there is a fund also under the government commissioners, and one connected with the temperance hall. A fever hospital, dispensary, and union workhouse, are among the other public institutions.

 There is a free school, supported by a portion of the endowment of the late Erasmus Smith, and a national school, the female branch being conducted by the sisters of the nunnery, and there is a female school under the patronage of the London Ladies' School Association. The market days are Thursday and Saturday.
 Fairs March 25th, May 7th, June 21st, August 8th, October 9th, and November 29th. Most of these fairs are well attended, and large quantities of cattle of all kinds, and other farming stock, are sold. The total population of Roscrea parish, in 1841, was 9,636, and the town 5,275 of that number.

AN ancient and considerable market town and parish, partly in the baronies of Clonlisk and Ballybritt, King's county, and province of Leinster, but chiefly in the barony of Inkerrin, county of Tipperary, is 75 miles s.w. from Dublin, 51 n. from Clonmel, and 44 n. e. from Limerick; situated at a northern apex of the county of Tipperary, that runs up between and divides King's and Queen's counties. This place was erected into a bishopric in the year 620, by Saint Cronan; but in the twelfth century was united to Killaloe. Some remains of the cathedral may be seen in the west front of the old church, executed in the beautiful style of the ninth century. Near it is a large stone cross called the Shrine of Saint Cronan, as well as one of the largest round towers in the kingdom, built of square stones, and in excellent preservation. Near this town the Danes met their first signal defeat; they had marched from Limerick and Connaught to surprise the inhabitants, then assembled at the great annual fair of Roscrea, which held fourteen days; but the people had notice of their approach, marched out, overthrew them, and left 4,000 Danes dead on the field, amongst whom was Olfin, their
