

mussel bank, from which large quantities of this fish are taken and sold in Belfast and the vicinity. Stations of the police and coast guard are appointed here; and a court leet and baron is held every three weeks, by the seneschal of the manor, wherein civil pleas under £10., and of record and attachments extending to £20. are entertained and decided. The places of worship are the parish church, an ancient building, a Roman Catholic chapel, and a Presbyterian meeting-house. A Franciscan friary or priory at one time stood in the village, but by whom founded, or when, no record exists; the church is believed to have been the chapel of the establishment. Within the parish are a few chalybeate springs; one contiguous to Hollywood, the others at Caltra and Ballymahon; their virtues, as yet, remain unnoticed. Population of the parish, in 1841, 5,045, including 1,532 resident in the village.

DUNMURRY is a village, in the parish of Drumbeg, barony of Upper Belfast, County of Antrim, seated on the banks of the Glenwater stream, and on the Malone road from Lisburn to Belfast, nearly midway between those towns. It is surrounded by well-planted hills, which impart to the village a charming rural aspect, and a character of quiet seclusion. There are some large flour mills and extensive bleach greens within the parish; and the Ulster railway passes close to the village. A Presbyterian meeting-house is the only place of worship. Population about two hundred.
